Building our Communities

Mirick has been deeply rooted in the community for over 100 years. Building projects help communities like ours continue to thrive. From condominium developments in South Boston to hospital projects in Worcester to dormitory projects in Springfield, our firm has had the privilege to represent clients with thousands of construction projects, large and small, commercial and residential, public and private, throughout the region. From initial planning through final completion, our construction law team represents and advises clients in all phases of construction and development projects.

An Insider's Perspective

Our clients appreciate that Mirick is uniquely situated as one of the largest law firms in Massachusetts outside of the Boston area, with the benefit of longstanding relationships with many in the building and business community. Our construction attorneys have technical and in-house backgrounds, stay current with industry trends, and hold leadership positions in several key local, regional, and national construction trade and civic organizations. Our attorneys focus on providing practical, efficient and innovative solutions to help our clients achieve successful projects.

Getting the Job Done

With any construction project, there is of course the potential for claims, disputes, and disruptions. Mirick's skilled attorneys understand the challenges our construction clients face on a daily basis, which provides a
