Mirick named MA Lawyer Weekly Legacy Law Firm

July 3, 2025 | In The News

Mirick has been named to Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly inaugural list of In the Lead: Legacy Law Firms. The list spotlights firms that have not merely survived but thrived for 25 years or more years. They range in size from three lawyers to hundreds of attorneys, but all have weathered economic shifts, technological transformations and an evolving legal landscape while maintaining a core commitment to client service.

As central Massachusetts' largest full-service law firm, Mirick operates with 75 attorneys across offices in Worcester, Westborough and Boston. For 109 years, the firm has maintained its founding commitment to exceptional client service and community engagement, establishing itself as a cornerstone of the Massachusetts legal landscape.

Founded by George H. Mirick, Paul R. O'Connell Sr., Gardener G. DeMallie and Laurence H. Lougee on a platform of service to both client and community, the firm's philosophy continues to drive operations under co-managing partners Paul W. Carey and Robert L. Kilroy, who lead alongside COO Diane Power and attorney Stephen Madaus on the Management Committee.

The firm's evolution reflects strategic adaptation to industry changes. A significant milestone occurred in 2016 when Mirick celebrated its centennial anniversary. More recently, the transition from long-time Managing Partner David Surprenant to Firm Chairman marked the adoption of the current Co-Managing Partner model, demonstrating the firm's commitment to progressive leadership structures.

Mirick's average employee tenure exceeds 15 years, a reflection of its emphasis on collaboration, respect and professional development. The firm's commitment to trust, inclusivity and transparency creates an
