Overview

A partner in the firm's Labor, Employment and Employee Benefits Group, Nick's practice includes traditional private- and public-sector labor law, litigation of employment disputes, and counseling on labor, employment and human resource matters.

Nick's background as Labor Counsel for the City of Boston and as an Assistant District Attorney in Suffolk County, translates to his work at Mirick. He is well known in the region as a strong negotiator and advocate for his clients.

While maintaining a diverse practice, he has developed a significant emphasis on labor relations. Nick regularly counsels clients on traditional labor issues, including election campaigns, complex contract formation disputes, grievance adjustment and arbitration, unfair labor charges, strikes, picketing, and other work stoppage issues and reduction-in-force planning. Nick has negotiated over 250 collective bargaining agreements and successfully represented public sector/public safety clients at the JLMC. His workplace safety practice includes defending OSHA and MA DLS inspections. He has appeared before numerous state and federal agencies including the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), the Massachusetts Division of Labor Relations (DLR), the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD), and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA).
